MESSAGE

A clean India is the best gift we can give to our present and future generations.

Our government is now dedicated to taking firm steps towards a clean India but this mission cannot be achieved without equal participation of our fellow citizens. We must make it a habit to keep our villages, towns, and cities, and rivers, lakes and water bodies, clean.

While our government is doing its best to improve the infrastructure, we must also develop a culture in the country where every citizen feels responsible for cleanliness and keeps our surroundings litter-free.

Therefore I am very pleased to convey my strong appreciation of the Clean India Day, which will be observed on October 10 this year. Public participation in this mission of clean India is a most important step and I urge as many citizens, and public and private, and social and cultural, organizations to make this day a resounding success by undertaking awareness and other activities on this day.

I commend the efforts of the come, clean India campaign, and imagindia Institute, for working tirelessly on this issue over last many years. I wish the campaign all success.
